

IMPORTANT RULES OF CONDUCT FOR FOREIGN TOURISTS IN TÜRKİYE

International travel can be an exciting and enriching experience. However, visiting a country with an unfamiliar language and culture may sometimes lead to uncertainty. Laws and regulations may differ from country to country, and failure to comply with them may result in penalties imposed by local authorities. Below is a general informational guide outlining important rules of conduct to be observed while traveling in Türkiye.

Littering

Littering is one of the most important rules to be observed. In many countries, including Türkiye, littering may result in fines. In countries such as Germany, England, Singapore, and the United States, penalties for littering can be particularly high. Since penalties also apply in Türkiye, visitors should be careful to dispose of waste properly. Waste should be separated correctly and placed in appropriate bins according to its type.

Using Bicycle Lanes Improperly

In many countries, including Germany, Switzerland, Sweden, Canada, and the Netherlands, bicycle use is very common. This practice is also becoming increasingly widespread in Türkiye. Bicycle lanes are designated specifically for cyclists to ensure safe and efficient traffic flow. Since cyclists travel continuously along these lanes, pedestrians must not walk on bicycle lanes. Crossing bicycle lanes requires extra caution to avoid accidents.

Unwanted Physical Contact

Unnecessary physical contact is generally not welcomed. Touching another person's head is considered inappropriate behavior. Due to cultural and religious sensitivities, physical contact with women and especially children is not acceptable. Visitors are advised to respect personal space and cultural norms.

Failure to Observe Traffic Rules

Traffic rules may vary from country to country. Therefore, it is important to familiarize yourself with local traffic regulations before traveling. Compliance with traffic rules is especially important when driving. Violations may result in fines or other legal consequences.
